What is Belonging?

Belonging is feeling accepted and valued by other individuals or groups. When we feel like we belong, it's good for our mental health. Having hobbies, interests, or activities can connect you to others. Do you have the same beliefs and values as others? Having shared identity, like religion, culture, and traditions can connect you with others. Participating in recreational activities or having interests like art or cooking can be a way to find connection. Finding commonality with others can help us to feel a sense of belonging and can contribute to long-lasting relationships. It can prevent loneliness and depression and provide opportunities for support through difficult times.

To increase your sense of belonging, engage with others who share your interests. It takes time and effort to build relationships. Be patient with the process and always be yourself!
